

Engel & Völkers awarded “Trump Towers” commission

- Exclusive residential development in Sunny Isles Beach off the Miami coast

Hamburg, 29 February 2008. Three exclusive residential towers are currently nearing completion in Sunny Isles Beach directly off the Miami coast – the latest first-class development to be realised by the American real estate mogul Donald J. Trump. Engel & Völkers, the international real estate company specialised in the sale of prestige residential and commercial properties, and premium yachts, has been awarded the commission for the sale of the “Trump Towers” in Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Spain.

The three 45-storey “Trump Towers” each consist of 271 apartments, and offer a luxurious home lifestyle that meets the very highest standards. “Our clients will be able to enjoy views of the Miami skyline directly from the comfort of their own whirlpool,” said Stefan Bolsen, Managing Partner of Engel & Völkers in Florida. The rounded corners of the triangular interior layouts within the “Trump Towers” are fully glazed. The apartments boast magnificent, far-reaching views, which stretch – depending on the unit’s individual orientation – from Fort Lauderdale to North Miami Beach, Downtown as far as South Beach and across the Atlantic Ocean.

The apartment interiors, entrance lobby and fitness complexes have all been exclusively designed by Hirsch Bedner & Associates, pioneers in hospitality interior design, who have already realised such elite properties as the St. Regis Hotel in Rome and “The Waterfront” tower in Dubai. A private beach, spa and fitness centre, heated outdoor pool with bar and a 24-hour concierge and security service round off the facilities on offer.

“We are delighted that our global Engel & Völkers network is enabling us to sell these exceptional Sunny Isles Beach apartments to our discerning client base,” Bolsen added. Sunny Isles, one of the coastal resorts along the 60-kilometre peninsula off Downtown Miami, is also dubbed the new “American Riviera”, having become the setting for the most exclusive real estate developments in the whole of Florida.
